

Sponsored By:

Boxers or briefs?

Two guys debate the merits of their favorite foundation on National Underwear Day

Tuesday, August 07, 2007

By BoNhia Lee
Staff writer

Boxers or briefs?

It's the age-old debate over which style of men's underwear is the most comfortable.

Where do you stand?

▼ Advertisement

CONTINUE STORY ↓

RELATED PHOTOS

- 2007 Emmy Awards
- Phil Lesh and Friends perform in Syracuse
- Fall Color
- More Photos

TOP HEADLINES

- Absolutely nothing's lost in 'Translations'
- 'Playing with Fire' captures true feeling of Frankenstein story
- Saxophonist ready to play and teach Saturday
- More Stories

BLOGS

A&E News

- Best Bets, Weds, fashion show 9:18 a.m. ET
- Best Bet, Mon: Live music 6:00 a.m. ET
- Best Bet, Tue: Marine Band 6:00 a.m. ET
- More Blog

Advance your career and increase your potential.

earn an SU degree part time at University College

daytime • evenings • weekends • online

Today is National Underwear Day a day to celebrate what underwear companies want consumers to think of as the most important thing people wear every day.

We asked two men with opposing views Joe Segretto, 30, of Kirkville (left) and Matthew Kormanec, 28, of Camillus to debate the merits of their favorite underwear. Here is their boxer vs. boxer briefs battle by e-mail.

Segretto: I once wore boxers, so I do have some recollection of how they feel. I remember that feeling of freedom.

The shorts are stylish. You can get them in all sorts of patterns, including your favorite team. I was really happy to be a boxer man once.

What is your favorite feature of the boxer?

Kormanec: Boxers are less constrictive, tight and allow easier access than briefs. This being said, you could consider the people who wear boxers an easier going person, someone who could be considered laid back.

Segretto: I can agree with that to a certain extent. Boxers are nice for lounging around the house, but what about the guy who is on the go? I am up and moving throughout the day, walking all over the building. I work out at lunch time and I play sports after work. The boxer brief works best for me and my active lifestyle.